PROGRAMME

Any revisions to the conference program will be uploaded to the UKSA website. We’ll give you a printed version when you arrive.

RECEIPTS

You don’t need a ticket for attending – your name is on the list! For those of you claiming back expenses, we can arrange for you to be sent a receipt if you have not already received one (most of you will have already been sent this). Please email Clare Jonas (c.jonas@sussex.ac.uk) if you still need one.

FRIDAY EVENING

I have not organised anything for the Friday evening before the conference, but I appreciate that many of you will be around in Brighton. For places to eat, I’d recommend the Preston Street area, or the Lanes area. If you’d like to meet up for a drink then I suggest the ‘Lion and Lobster’ pub at the top of Norfolk Square, just off the seafront in the direction of Hove from 8.30pm. They also serve food here but maybe come a little earlier to get a table. It is (A) on the map below…
GETTING TO THE CONFERENCE

The conference is held in room 1A7, Pevensey Building (School of Psychology) at the University of Sussex. A map is below. We are presently under green scaffolding which you will have to navigate through to find the entrance (with a lift next to it). The campus itself is pretty and is located in green fields about 10 minutes from the city. There are several options for getting here:

Train =
Buy your ticket from Brighton station to ‘Falmer’. The cost is about £4. On Saturday morning, you can get the train from Brighton at 8.40 (arriving in Falmer at 8.49) or 8.52 (arriving 9.01). I will arrange for someone to be at Falmer station holding a sign saying “UKSA”. Follow that person! There are about 4 trains per hour running back and forth. On Sunday, you can make your own way – it isn’t hard when you know the way.

Taxi =
Your hotel should be able to arrange one for you. Ask for the ‘University of Sussex’ and the best drop off point is at the Barclays Bank on the corner of Sussex House. Walk along the path into the campus and you’ll see us on your right. Streamline taxis (01273 202020) do a fixed price from central Brighton to the University of £12. If there are several of you staying in the same hotel, this is definitely the best option.
INFO FOR SPEAKERS

Please note that you have a 25 minute slot, but we need AT LEAST 5 minutes for questions and change-over. As the conference is bigger than I initially planned, we are now based in a lecture theatre (tiered) rather than seminar room. It is well equipped but less cosy and more formal. Those of you speaking on the Saturday morning are strongly advised to email me (or post me) a copy of your presentation so that I can check that it works. It doesn’t have to be the final version, but it would be reassuring to know we have a working version. Other speakers can do likewise but there will, of course, be opportunities to check this out in the intervals.

INFO FOR POSTER PRESENTERS

Please prepare your poster in portrait rather than landscape format as space is limited. The poster should be no bigger than A0 (http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Paper_size) but can be comprised of several smaller sheets. Most posters will be attached to a brick wall and we will supply strong tape to fix them up. The poster session is 1-2pm on Sunday. You are asked to stand by your poster for at least 30 minutes. Some people may ask you to summarise it for them, or ask you questions. Some people will be just happy to read it for themselves or browse at the conclusion.

SATURDAY NIGHT MEAL

This is only for those who have pre-booked the meal. It will take place on Saturday evening at 7pm at Al Fresco’s (http://www.alfresco-brighton.co.uk/). The menu is below to whet your appetite but you can choose your dish on the day.

Starters
(V) Tomato, mozzarella, and avocado salad with a pesto dressing
Scottish smoked salmon with crayfish tails, avocado, rocket, lemon and black pepper dressing
Carpaccio of Angus beef fillet with rocket, parmesan and lemon dressing

Mains
(V) Grilled Mediterranean vegetables and marinated feta cheese on a plate of couscous with spiced harissa dressing and mint yoghurt
Fillet of sea bass with grilled marinated artichokes, sunblushed tomatoes and oregano cooked en papillote with steamed vegetables and new potatoes
Roast Aylesbury duck breast rolled in wild fennel seeds with roast caramelised carrots and broccoli

(A) on map below, it is a glass building on the seafront
WHAT TO DO IN BRIGHTON

The main tourist attraction is the ‘Royal Pavillion’ which is a 200 year old palace decorated in an extravagant oriental style (Indian exterior, Chinese interior)...

A walk along the seafront is also recommended and the walk along Hove lawns (to your right as you face the sea) is pleasant and takes in some attractive Georgian/Victorian squares. The district to the left of the pier as you face the seafront is called Kemp Town and is Brighton’s famous ‘gay quarter’.

For shopping, coffee etc. then try the Lanes area and the North Laine area which has boutique and independent shops and cafes. For regular high street brands try the Western Road/Churchill Square area.

SEE YOU SOON!
